

Gone surfing!

Make the most of what's available on the internet with a selection of our favourite websites

BY BEATRICE HODGKIN

Photograph, £400, Eleanor Lindsay Fynn

degreart.com An online gallery that gathers together work by graduates fresh from art school. With an incredibly varied selection, you're left to sift through the works relatively unguided, so it's a chance to decide for yourself who the artists-to-watch are and invest before their prices skyrocket.

junosayshello.com

With its capsule collection of elegant vintage designer fashion pieces to buy and rent, this site is a real find. Sections entitled 'Poolside', 'Red Carpet', 'Wedding And Races' and 'Winter Suits' help shoppers navigate the site with debonair ease and, with prices ranging from between £100 and £400 (plus a keep-your-eye-on-it sale section), Mad Men fiends will have a field day. Silk dress, £235

testmybrain.org

Try these short games that test your brain so that you can find out more about your personality type while contributing to Harvard University science boffins' studies of how our minds work. Topics include beauty, maths and face recognition – enjoy the mental gymnastics!

mrporter.com

Net-A-Porter for men launches this month. It's the perfect tool to steer the men in your life towards a wardrobe upgrade and a rather fun place to browse for fashionable men's presents that extend beyond socks and ties – though those on sale here are pretty damn cool.

monicaandjoe.co.uk

The couple behind this boutique have channelled their extensive fashion expertise into selecting pieces for women who want to shop for chic European designers. Includes Cacharel, By Malene Birger and fresh label Designers Remix.

Silk dress, £440, Cacharel

pageonelondon.com

A members' club launched with the help of food critic Fay Maschler and the support of countless London foodies, this website lists the 100 best London restaurants in an continually revised and tweaked line-up, visible for a fee. Slick, chic and a byword for delicious dining.

roostliving.com

The quirky interiors accessories found at Roost Living are an interesting mix of one-off pieces, re-worked vintage finds (see the great wooden ruler lampshade featured in our homes story, page 159), cosy creature comforts and curious objets d'art-cum-practical utensils. A retail adventure.

myfriendshotel.com

This Facebook for the travel world sees independent people with a holiday home to rent (from a penthouse in LA to a caravan in Dorset) set up their profile page, as do travellers looking for somewhere to stay. Clear search functions make for brilliantly easy navigation while feedback posts and local interest points make sure everyone is clear about what's on offer.

